

~~We were walking, then~~ The trees were depressing black holes and my brain was a vast empty desert but silence dark is like being locked in a room full of silence. It felt like I had been walking for decaydes...

Then... I saw light! I rushed towards it but ~~with~~ the cold air snapped <sup>ingled</sup> at my face. but That didn't stop me! I felt stronger when I saw the light, more resilient, more braver than ever.

We were all there, at the light. It felt like the box I had been trapped in this whole time had been unlocked.

"WE DID IT GUYS!!!" They all shouted with resilience.

"Yes we did it," I said bravely.

THE END!

* In a strange forest, there were strange animals. My name was Alex the elephant, We have been in this forest for days. Frostbite, dehydration, sour feet - which one would kill me first? As we were trudging through the forest a random skeleton was following us... Walking in this forest made me numb and my legs as wobbily as jelly I couldn't take it anymore.
